Mr. Rhodes said at present he was merely explaining his grounds for bringing his resolution forward. He would not now go into particulars and turnish the proofs which he possessed, but he would say that at last Session the Government made a report to the effect that attempts had been made to obtain coolies from India, and that famine and other causes had interfered and prevented the immigration. He gave that report a flat denial, and asserted there was not a particle of truth in it. The intended immigration had broken down and was assented to by the gentleman who is now Chief Justice of
